

THE SCHOOL

The old register mentions Theophilus Wilde, clerk schoolmaster, in 1778. In 1845 there is a note saying that a mistress is wanted to teach at a boys and girls school in Bramham on the National System. There were separate schools for boys and girls and a house rent free.

The children learnt reading, writing and cyphering. The mistress had to be able to teach the girls needlework.

In 1841 the school fees were:

Labourers [paid weekly]

2d weekly for reading
2d in addition for writing
2d in addition for arithmetic
and measuration
2d in addition for geography
and English grammar

Tradesmen

2d weekly for reading
1½d in addition for writing
2d in addition for geography
and English grammar
1½d for arithmetic and measuration

The School.

Brumfit & Booth,
Bramham P.O.

Low Road, Bramham

The Village School (above) see book pages 32-5
Below are Methodist Sunday School children.

Day School Outing between the Wars.
See book page 34 .