

High Street

The continuation of Town Hill beyond Church Hill was owned in large measure , though not entirely , by the Bramham Park Estate in the late C18 and early C19 ; many of the tenants listed in the 1818 Tenancy Book lived here . This was largely because the houses and farms on High Street were attached to the farmlands in the parish owned by the Estate.

Farmhouse, now house. Dated 1682 (?) over door; altered and extended. Coursed magnesian limestone rubble, tiled roof with brick chimneys. Linear 3-cell lobby-entry plan. Two storeys, added bay on left. Main range: doorway at junction of 1st and 2nd cells, has chamfered surround and large rectangular lintel, a square stone over this crudely inscribed (?) 6 I H 82; 3 side-sliding sash windows on each floor, all with glazing bars, the lower ones perhaps lengthened and the upper ones with stone sills and heads. Stone gable copings with kneelers, a chimney on the ridge, almost in line with doorway, and another at the right gable. Single cell addition at left end, of 2 slightly lower storeys, with small sliding sash at ground floor and larger one at 1st floor. Rear altered and of less interest. Interior: housepart in centre has stop-chamfered firehood bressummer (cut short at left end for inserted staircase), and exposed joists; at 1st floor, some evidence of earlier fenestration in different positions; common rafter roof with some curved struts.

Farmhouse, now house. Probably early C17, altered and cased in stone in C18; altered. Coursed magnesian limestone rubble, pantiled roof with corrugated sheet eaves, but incorporating remains of former timber-framed structure. Linear 3-cell lobby-entry plan, with continuous rear outshut. Two storeys. Quoins. Glazed door at junction of 1st and 2nd cells, a 2-light casement to the left, an inserted modern bow window and a 3-light casement to the right, and casements of 2, 3, and 2 lights at 1st floor. Steeply-pitched roof with gable parapet at left end, chimney on ridge in line with door and at right gable. Left gable has one window at ground floor, another at upper level of outshut; right gable has window at 1st floor; rear altered and of less interest. Interior: evidence of former timber-framed structure includes one wall post in front wall (at junction of 2nd and 3rd bays), and 3 in screen wall to outshut with a wallplate, and pegholes in this for longitudinal bracing to the posts and towards the present stone gable wall at the left end; some evidence that roof was formerly hipped at this end; inglenook fireplace with remains of former smoke hood on opposite side of stack at 1st floor; chamfered firehood bressummer in 2nd bay, another in 3rd bay; lateral partition between 2nd and 3rd bays removed (wattle holes for it in beam); "beehive" breadoven in rear of stack, now concealed.
