

Marriage of Lord Bridgeman's Heir And Miss Mary Lane-Fox.

ANIMATED SCENES AT BRAMHAM VILLAGE.

MR. STANLEY BALDWIN PRESENT.

NONAGENARIAN PEER WITNESSES GRANDDAUGHTER'S WEDDING.

SEVEN BRIDESMAIDS.

THE BRIDE AND BRIDEGROOM.

For the second time within a very few months all thoughts of Yorkshire Society were yesterday fixed on the village of Bramham, for at the little Parish Church of All Saints the marriage took place of Miss Mary Kathleen Lane Fox, second daughter of Col. the Rt. Hon. G. R. Lane Fox, M.P., and the Hon. Mrs. Lane Fox, the bridegroom being Capt. the Hon. Robert Clive Bridgeman, M.C., the Rifle Brigade, eldest son of Viscount and Viscountess Bridgeman, of Leigh Manor, Minsterley, Shropshire.

The bride, like her sisters, is extremely popular. Not only is she a regular follower of hounds, but her active interest and work in parochial affairs have endeared her not only to the villagers of Bramham and district, but to all who have the pleasure of her acquaintance. She is of a most likeable and sunny nature, and her presence is welcomed by all classes of Society.

The interest in the event was mani-

An interesting figure among the guests was Lord Halifax, grandfather of the bride, who celebrated his 91st birthday last Saturday. Though naturally frail, his Lordship was quite able to walk from the Church to his waiting car some distance away, and he took a keen interest in the ceremony.

Mr. R. F. Walker presided at the organ, and the musical portion of the service included the organ solos—Pastorale (Cesar Franck), prelude and fugue in A minor (Bach), "Jesu joy of man's desiring" (Bach chorale); cello solos by Miss Susan Jones, A.R.C.M.—Sarabande and aria (Bach).

The service opened with the singing of the hymn, "Come, Thou Holy Paraclete," and after the wedding there was a celebration of the Holy Communion, at which the bride and bridegroom alone participated. At this service the hymns sung were "The King of love my Shepherd is," "As with gladness men of old," and "Thine for ever God of love." The solos in the Ave Verum were beautifully sung by Masters Arthur Tindall and George Fisher, two of the choir boys.

The sun shone at the close of the

passed under the lych gate on her way to and from the Church, leaning on the arm of her father, by whom she was given away.

From an early hour people began to arrive in the village, and an hour before the ceremony was timed to start the roads and fields in the immediate vicinity of the church were congested with motor cars, and a large crowd of people had occupied all available vantage points in the churchyard to witness the arrival of the bridal party and the guests.

Although the sun did not shine at the time of the service, the scenes outside the church were gay and summery. The villagers turned out in their best, and the school children, who had been given a holiday for the occasion, were well in the foreground to see all that went on.

Members of the Women's Unionist Association filled the churchyard, and representatives of many of the best known families in the county filled the church to overflowing, and went on afterwards to the reception at Bramham Park.

The little church was decorated with banks of deep rose-coloured rhododendrons, and the pulpit was festive with red roses and garlands of ivy.

The officiating clergy were the Arch-Bishop of York, who gave the final blessing; the Rev. Prebendary E. R. O. Bridgeman, of Blymhill Rectory, Shifnal, cousin of the bridegroom; the Rev. C. P. Shaw, of St. Mary Magdalene, Paddington, who took the marriage service; and the Rev. F. W. Hicks, vicar of All Saints', Bramham.

The bride made a charming picture in a gown of double satin charmeuse cut on modern straight lines, with a trail of orange blossom mounted on silver at the waist, and her veil of priceless Brussels lace was worn with a wreath of real myrtle. She wore also a pearl necklace, the gift of her aunt, Miss Lane Fox.

Mr. Stanley Baldwin, one of the guests, received a rousing reception on his arrival at the Church, as he did when he departed after the ceremony.

The bridesmaids were seven in number—the Misses Dorothy and Margaret Lane Fox, sisters of the bride; the Misses Felicity Lane Fox and Mary Sutton, cousins of the bride; the Hon. Rosemary Hamilton Russell and the Misses Jeannine Bridgeman and Cynthia Radcliffe, cousins of the bridegroom. The best man was the Hon. Maurice Bridgeman, brother of the bridegroom.

The bridesmaids wore long dresses of soft green georgette cut on slim graceful lines and finished in front with a crystal ornament. They wore also wreaths of shaded leaves and tulle veils to tone with the dresses, and necklaces of real crystal intersected with pearls and green stones, presents from the bridegroom.

Just before the arrival of the bride the bridesmaids walked down the red-carpeted pathway over which hung a canopy, to the lychgate. The Altar boys and the officiating clergy walked from the altar to the entrance of the church to the sound of the organ and waited for the bride and her father.

On her arrival at the lychgate with her father she stopped to arrange her train, and allow the tiny train bears

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Bramham, to which the tenantry of the Estate were invited along with the more illustrious guests. On the previous Tuesday the tradespeople of the village and the employees had been entertained to tea at the Park.

The wedding presents were arranged on tables and chairs round the four walls of one of the reception rooms.

The bride's going-away dress was of crepe romaine in a soft periwinkle shade of blue with a bolero to the waist, and finished at the back with a bow, and sleeves and neck being edged with palest pink georgette, and a hat to match.

The honeymoon will be spent in Austria, following a few days at Garrowby Hall, kindly lent by the bride's uncle, Lord Irwin, the Viceroy of India.

LOCAL RATES AND ASSESSMENT.
 To the Editor,
 The Crescent

Dear Sir,—The letter from "DES" is not very refreshing, but the spot, and I agree with all the word of it.

The Bardsey rates at present the pound, and there is no doubt will be greatly increased within three or four years, perhaps less. If the Sewage Scheme comes it will naturally be followed by a scheme, i.e., collection of refuse destructor.

There is also coming along another Educational rate, and the total of some area's poor rate.

I am informed that owners of houses have to pay one half the cost of the drain to the main sewerage. There are any houses which are too far connected, they will carry on as usual will pay the rate.

I am at any one's service to assist in the formation of a Local Ratepayers' Association.
 Yours faithfully,
 A. J. Y.
