When the book 'Bramham -- the Village in Times Past' was being put together in the early 1990's, its main purpose was to preserve pictures and tales of the village which would become lost as older inhabitants died. The tales were recorded, the pictures [photos, cards, cuttings] borrowed. Christopher Shaw, Vicar's son and professional photographer, reproduced the pictures so that they could be returned at once to their owners. This volume contains his work, individually and at the end, collected in miniature.
